Executive Chairperson's Statement

Much has been achieved over the last few years in implementing the vision for nursing and midwifery contained in the Report of the Commission on Nursing. There are now structures at national and regional level in Ireland for the management and development of the profession of nursing and midwifery. These structures are developing a sense of their own identity and of their respective roles and are beginning to impact on the development of services for the benefit of the clients of the health services and on the formulation of policy. It is important that these structures continue to develop in an empowered way. It will take time for all of the benefits to filter through, but there can be no doubt that enormous progress has been made thanks to the work and efforts of all those involved. The National Council looks forward to the progression of this agenda in 2003.

Many of our activities in 2002 focused on supporting and promoting the Health Strategy document Quality and Fairness - A Health System for You. This outlines a programme of investment and reform of the health system to be implemented over the next decade. It sets clear priorities but also involves all elements of the system. What distinguishes the strategy is the unique level of consultation with individuals, professional groups, disciplines, voluntary organisations and state agencies on which it was based.

The Strategy is of central importance to every health professional in Ireland. The relevance of Quality and Fairness to nurses and midwives cannot be overstated. They are shown to comprise the largest group of staff in the public health services. The strategy is built on the pillars of equity, people-centredness, quality and accountability. It sets out a series of national goals under the headings of better health for everyone, fair access, responsive and appropriate care delivery and high performance. The framework for change that will enable the achievement of these goals includes the strengthening of primary care, developing human resources, organisational reform, reforming acute hospitals, funding and information.

The development of primary care is therefore a central theme in the strategy and it is incumbent on all nurses and midwives to inform themselves as to how their role can contribute to the further advancement of strategies for strengthening primary care.

During the year, the National Council carried out the consultation and research work needed to prepare a major discussion paper on the professional development of nursing and midwifery, which will be published in 2003. A comprehensive consultation process was undertaken with over eight hundred nurses and midwives. Twenty-two workshops and additional meetings with key stakeholders were held throughout the country.

The purpose of the discussion paper is to identify the key development issues facing nursing and midwifery in the future and to establish a strong platform for the formulation of strategic responses to these issues. The document contains an insightful analysis of existing and future challenges. It will be a key document for the Council as it plans its future activities in fulfilling its remit.

On behalf of the National Council I would like place on record our thanks to Mr Micheál Martin, TD, Minister for Health and Children; the Nursing Policy Division of the Department of Health and Children; and to the many national, regional and local professional and representative bodies who have given their full support to the work of the National Council in the promotion and development of nursing and midwifery in Ireland.

I wish to express my appreciation to my colleagues on the National Council for their continued enthusiasm and commitment during 2002 and, on their behalf, I would like to thank our executive staff, who have made a tremendous contribution to our mission. They can all take pride in what has been achieved to date and I know that their commitment and enthusiasm will continue to be in evidence as we meet the challenges of the future.

Liam Dunbar

Executive Chairperson

Chief Executive Officer's Report

The past year has been one of significant progress by the National Council in delivering on its mission of promoting and developing the professional role of nurses and midwives in order to ensure the delivery of quality nursing and midwifery care to patients/clients in a changing healthcare environment.

Central to this process is the development of specialist and advanced practice roles for nurses and midwives, as well as a clinical career pathway for nurses and midwives, a function vested in the National Council by the Commission on Nursing. The National Council has defined the roles and core concepts for Clinical Nurse/Midwife Specialist (CNS/CMS) and Advanced Nurse/Midwife Practitioner (ANP/AMP) posts.

We recognise that the educational preparation for specialist and advanced nursing and midwifery practice involves a partnership between all stakeholders. There is great scope for innovation in both the development of roles in line with service need and of educational courses to prepare nurses and midwives to meet those needs. To this end, the National Council issued Guidelines on the Development of Courses Preparing Nurses & Midwives as Clinical Nurse/Midwife Specialists and Advanced Nurse/Midwife Practitioners in May 2002. These provide guidance to organisations engaged in the development of educational courses for CNSs/CMSs and ANPs/AMPs and address programme development, design and evaluation, the curriculum, and programme resources.

There was active co-operation between the National Council and Nursing and Midwifery Planning and Development Units (NMPDUs) within each of the Health Boards throughout the year. This included the development of continuing education, the organisation of workshops for Directors of Nursing and others involved in the development and monitoring of the profession and the needs of the service. Our executive staff have met the Directors of the NMPDUs both as a group and on an individual basis in their own health board areas. These regional meetings provided an invaluable opportunity to meet senior nurse and midwife managers, representatives of the third level institutions and other interested groups of nurses and midwives, and to learn about developments and challenges at regional and local levels.

The National Council and the Directors of the NMPDUs are jointly involved in the creation of and processing of applications for CNS/CMS posts under the intermediate pathway and ANP/AMP posts. The accreditation of ANP/AMP posts is a function of the National Council and the monitoring of these posts is shared by the National Council and the NMPDUs.

In 2002, we celebrated the accreditation of the first ever Advanced Nurse Practitioner (Emergency), Valerie Small, of St James's Hospital. By the end of the year, three more ANPs were accredited by the National Council.

We continued to work closely with the NMPDUs to plan and make provision for additional funding for continuing education. This funding is over and above the normal funding that each Health Board has available for this purpose and supports areas of continuing education that might not normally be funded. One of the most important functions of this funding is to ensure greater access to post-registration training and education. It is our intention to continue to encourage the development of innovative approaches to additional continuing education for nurses and midwives in areas that reflect their professional development needs and the needs of the services.

The Council also continues its partnership with An Bord Altranais on the Nurse and Midwife Prescribing Project, which is examining the issues surrounding the involvement of nurses and midwives in the prescribing of medical preparations. Criteria for the selection of pilot sites, nurse/midwife collaborative prescribing and for the selection of education programmes were agreed.

Over 1,000 nurses and midwives from all over Ireland attended the National Council's second annual conference this year. They included clinical practitioners, managers and teachers from various practice settings. The Council is committed to ensuring that the annual conference will become one of the most important events of the year for nurses and midwives - affording as many as possible the opportunity to come together to discuss issues of central importance to the development of the profession and of the services.

The year ahead will be a particularly challenging one in the further development of the profession and, in association with our stakeholders, we will build on what has been achieved to date in opening new opportunities and horizons for nursing and midwifery in Ireland.

Yvonne O'Shea
Chief Executive Officer

The Role and Functions of the National Council

The National Council was established in November 1999 on foot of a Statutory Instrument (SI No 376, 30 November 1999) from the Minister for Health and Children and entitled The National Council for the Professional Development of Nursing and Midwifery (Establishment) Order, 1999.

As stated in the Statutory Instrument (Section 4), the functions of the National Council are:

- a. To monitor the on-going development of nursing and midwifery specialities, taking into account changes in practice and service need;
- b. To formulate guidelines for the assistance of health boards and other relevant bodies in the creation of specialist nursing and midwifery posts;
- c. To support additional developments in continuing nurse education by health boards and voluntary organisations;
- d. To assist health service providers by setting guidelines for the selection of nurses and midwives who might apply for financial support in seeking opportunities to pursue further education;
- e. To publish an annual report on its activities, including the disbursement of monies by the Council.

These functions reflect five of those recommended by the Commission on Nursing (par 6.14)¹.

1. Government of Ireland (1998) Report of the Commission on Nursing: A Blueprint for the Future. Dublin: Stationery Office.

Activities Report

Clinical Nurse Specialist/Clinical Midwife Specialist Posts

In 2002 the executive of the National Council took on a monitoring role with regard to Clinical Nurse Specialist/Clinical Midwife Specialist (CNS/ CMS) posts, while the Nursing and Midwifery Planning and Development Units (NMPDUs) took over approval of new posts at regional level. The respective national and regional monitoring functions were agreed in consultation with the Directors of the NMPDUs.

Further development of the CNS/CMS database was undertaken, in order to facilitate the entry of data and the production of reports, and will continue in 2003. Statistics on the regional distribution of approved CNS/CMS posts and the relevant division of the register are published on the National Council's website and updated monthly. Figures for the approved CNS/CMS posts in each health board region and practising division of the register are shown in Table 1 (below). Guidelines are being developed for those requiring information on approved CNS/CMS posts for research purposes and will be circulated in 2003.

In order to assist providers of continuing/postregistration education programmes in the establishment and development of higher/postgraduate diplomas programmes for CNSs/CMSs, the National Council published its document, Guidelines on the Development of Courses Preparing Nurses and Midwives as Clinical Nurse/Midwife Specialists and Advanced Nurse/Midwife Practitioners, in May 2002 (see Box1, p16).

Advanced Nurse Practitioner / Advanced Midwife Practitioner Posts

The first Advanced Nurse Practitioner (ANP) postholder was accredited in May 2002. Valerie Small, who is a member of the National Council, is now an ANP (Emergency), working at St James's Hospital, Dublin. A further three ANP posts in St James's Hospital were approved in July. The postholders, Olivia Smith and Gabrielle Dunne, ANPs (Emergency), and Sandra Delamere, ANP (Sexual Health), were accredited in September. A database of ANP posts and postholders has been established and development of this database will continue in 2003.

The Commission on Nursing envisaged that third level institutes, in consultation with health service providers, would prepare curricula for masters' degree programmes, which would prepare nurses [and midwives] for positions as ANPs/AMPs (par 6.47). In order to assist these programme providers in the preparation of such programmes, the National Council published its document, Guidelines on the Development of Courses Preparing Nurses and Midwives as Clinical Nurse/Midwife Specialists and Advanced Nurse/Midwife Practitioners, in May. This document provides guidelines in relation to the development, design and evaluation of programmes, the curriculum and programme resources (see Box 1, p16).

Nursing and Midwifery Planning and Development Units

The National Council continued to meet with the Directors of the Nursing and Midwifery Planning and Development Units (NMPDUs) throughout the year, both as a group and on an individual basis within their own health board areas. The executive staff of the National Council and the NMPDUs have developed strong working relationships through these meetings and through regular formal and informal contact on many professional and procedural issues.

In addition a series of features on individual NMPDUs commenced in the Summer 2002 issue of the newsletter and will be completed in 2003. This series highlighted the general roles and functions of the NMPDUs concerning management, communication, continuing education and training, development of the clinical career pathway, professional and practice development, and workforce planning as indicated in Report of the Commission on Nursing: A Blueprint for the Future (Government of Ireland, 1998), Nursing and Midwifery Resource: Interim Report of the Steering Group and The Nursing and Midwifery Resource: Final Report of the Steering Group – Towards Workforce Planning (Nursing Policy Division, Department of Health and Children, 2001 and 2002).

An effective partnership of these national and regional bodies has enhanced both their shared and separate functions with regard to monitoring of Clinical Nurse Specialist/ Clinical Midwife Specialist (CNS/CMS) posts under the intermediate career pathway and supporting continuing education programmes for nurses and midwives.

Continuing Education

The allocation of funding to continuing education programmes is a major part of the National Council's work. This work has developed in partnership with the Nursing and Midwifery Planning and Development Units. Furthermore it has been fuelled by the enthusiasm and dynamism of nurses and midwives working at local level who can envisage the changes required to enhance patient-/client-centred, high quality health services. Programmes funded in 2002 range from one-day conferences to three-year practice development projects, and cover various aspects of practice, management, education/training and research.

Applications for additional funding were processed in accordance with the document Criteria and Processes for the Allocation of Additional Funding for Continuing Education (February 2001). The original application form was revised in February 2002 and was made available on request from the National Council and on the website. A brief description of all continuing education programmes for which funding was approved in 2002 is included in the Appendix.

Guidelines on the Development of Courses Preparing Nurses and Midwives as Clinical Nurse/Midwife Specialists and Advanced Nurse/Midwife Practitioners

In order to assist providers of continuing/postregistration education programmes in the establishment and development of higher/ postgraduate diplomas programmes for CNSs/CMSs, the National Council published its document, Guidelines on the Development of Courses Preparing Nurses and Midwives as Clinical Nurse/Midwife Specialists and Advanced Nurse/Midwife Practitioners, in May (see Box 1, p16).

Box 1. Summary of Guidelines on the Development of Courses Preparing Nurses and Midwives as Clinical Nurse/Midwife Specialists and Advanced Nurse/Midwife Practitioners (May 2002)

Programme Development, Design and Evaluation

Educational programmes preparing nurses and midwives as CNSs/CMSs and ANPs/AMPs, should be developed in relation to service needs. Key stakeholders should be engaged in programme development and design and further development should be based on the findings of programme evaluation and quality improvement procedures.

The Curriculum

Programme curricula should demonstrate best educational practice. They should incorporate an integrated approach to theory and practice with recognition of their mutual significance to specialist and advanced professional practice.

Programme Resources

The programme should be resourced in such a manner as to support its delivery and further development and to ensure quality programme provision.

Guidelines Specific to CNS/CMS Courses

- The educational award should be a postgraduate diploma, higher diploma, graduate diploma or equivalent.
- The programme should contain a minimum requirement of 500 clinical hours* in the area of specialist practice, 250 of which must be in supervised clinical practice with explicit justification for the amount and level of supervision.

Guidelines Specific to ANP/AMP Courses

- The educational award should be a masters' degree.
- The programme should contain a minimum requirement of 1000 clinical hours*, in the area of advanced practice, 500 of which must be in supervised clinical practice with explicit justification for the amount and level of supervision.
- The recruitment policy and criteria for the selection of students should be consistent with the National Council's criteria for ANP/AMP.

* Clinical hours are defined as working in direct clinical practice associated with the achievement of the clinical learning outcomes of the programme and includes observation of clinical practice, supervised clinical practice and consolidation of clinical practice.

Nurse and Midwife Prescribing Project

The Review of Nurses and Midwives in the Prescribing and Administration of Medicinal Products Project is being undertaken by the National Council in partnership with An Bord Altranais. The purpose of the project is to review the involvement of nurses and midwives in the prescribing of medical preparations, with a view to producing prescribing guidelines. Terms of reference are shown in Box 2 (p18).

Yvonne O'Shea, Kathleen Mac Lellan, Marie Keane, Pearse Finegan and Kathryn Mc Quillan represent the National Council on the multidisciplinary Steering Committee. Four meetings of this committee were held in 2002. Criteria for the selection of pilot sites, nurse/midwife collaborative prescribing and for the selection of an education programme were agreed.

A subcommittee was set up with responsibility for revision of Guidance to Nurses and Midwives on the Administration of Medical Preparations (An Bord Altranais, 2000) and the development of an education programme concerned with nurse/midwife prescribing.

Ten medication management seminars were held around the country in November and December. The topics covered included an overview of the project, the concept of medication management, the prescribing process, prescribing models and international experiences, research studies on nurse prescribing, and current and future concerns about medication management.

Box 2. Terms of Reference of the Nurse and Midwife Prescribing Project

- Review of current practice, identifying relevant issues
- Review of appropriate international literature and experience
- Review of national and international legislation related to nurse and midwife prescribing
- Review of Guidance to Nurses and Midwives on the Administration of Medical Preparations (An Bord Altranais, 2000)
- Review of intra- and inter-professional boundaries and their implications for nurse and midwife prescribing
- Consideration of circumstances in which nurses and midwives might prescribe
- Identification of pilot sites suitable for the initiation of nurse and midwife prescribing
- Consideration of documentation necessary to support nurse and midwife prescribing
- Initiation and evaluation of nurse and midwife prescribing in pilot sites
- Produce detailed guidelines including a framework for nurse and midwife prescribing where appropriate

Research

The National Council established the role of Research Development Officer and Sarah Condell was appointed to this post in June 2002. This is a joint appointment with the Health Research Board (HRB) where the role of Nursing Research Advisor has evolved since its inception in 1999. The value of such a joint appointment is that it provides a professional overview of national nursing and midwifery research development and allows a more integrated approach to its funding. The appointee also contributes to corporate operations within both organisations. Importantly, this ensures that nursing and midwifery has a profile within the major national funding body of health research and that research is represented in a statutory nursing and midwifery professional organisation.

In the National Council, the Research Development Officer focuses mainly on building research awareness and activity. One of the principal functions of the post is to lead the implementation of the Research Strategy for Nursing and Midwifery in Ireland (Department of Health and Children, 2003). This strategy has been developed by a consultative committee convened by the Nursing Policy Division in the Department of Health and Children. It outlines the commitments required at national, institutional and professional levels in order to develop and sustain a research agenda for all facets of nursing and midwifery.

Whilst awaiting the publication of this document, the Research Development Officer has been meeting with stakeholders and gathering baseline information to inform future developments under the Strategy. The existing communication channels of the National Council, namely the newsletter and website have been utilised to profile research. Both national and international networking has been undertaken for the purpose of building future strategic alliances.

Communication and Contact

Second National Conference: “Building on the Health Strategy: Challenges for Nurses and Midwives”

The launch of the second National Conference of the National Council was hosted by the Minister for Health and Children, Micheál Martin, TD, and opened by the Minister of State at the Department of Health and Children, Ivor Callely, TD, on 19 November 2002 at Dublin Castle. As in 2001, the conference content was repeated over two days (20-21 November), enabling approximately 1,000 practitioners to attend, meet the presenters and network.

The title, theme and content of the conference reflected the actual and potential nursing and midwifery contribution to the implementation of the Health Strategy, Quality and Fairness – A Health System for You, and the Primary Care Strategy, Primary Care – A New Direction (Department of Health and Children, 2001). The speakers and chairpersons included representatives from the Department of Health and Children, the Health Research Board, the Office for Health Management, An Bord Altranais, the Nursing and Midwifery Planning and Development Units, and internationally-known experts in nursing and midwifery practice and education.

Almost one hundred poster presentations were received from all around the country and from the different divisions of the register, and depicted innovations in practice, service delivery, role development, and education for practitioners and patients/clients. Two separate poster competitions were held on successive days. Prizes were awarded to the winners and runners-up.

Website

The National Council’s website (www.ncnm.ie) underwent further development in 2002. All National Council documents can be viewed on and downloaded from the website. Nurses and midwives are invited to advertise forthcoming events free of charge.

Nine specialist nursing/ midwifery groups have availed of the opportunity to set up web pages on the site. By the end of 2002 31,229 visits to the website had been recorded.

A web-based directory of courses offered by third level institutes in the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland was launched in September 2002. Over three hundred courses and modules, including specialist nursing and midwifery courses and courses of relevance or interest to nurses and midwives, are listed on the website. From the time of its launch to the end of 2002 1,378 visits to these webpages had been recorded.

Newsletter

The National Council continued to distribute its quarterly newsletter to all nurses and midwives on the Register. The Winter 2002 issue was sent to 58,520 nurses and midwives registered with An Bord Altranais. A further 3,617 copies were distributed to health service personnel and organisations, higher and third level education institutions and international nursing/midwifery organisations. The newsletter is also available on the National Council's website.
